are still sitting tight in their refusal to enter into the plan proposed by John Heydler and his followers in Chicago, but the National Leaguers and the three "rebellious" American League leaders, are showing signs of eakening.

They don't come out and admit that they are willing to make con-cessions, but they "ardently hope" that Ban Johnson and cohorts will be present at a joint meeting in Chicago-Monday.

Heydler Not So Bellicose,

Heydler is no longer talking in a bellicose tone. Here is his latest:
"As was intimated upon our return from Chicago, the eleven clubs that made a solemn covenant for a proper reorganization of baseball government are tolerant rather than antagonistic to those who refused to discuss the issue. It is hoped the five will be on hand in Chicago next
